GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS

If you are filing a Rhode Island income tax return and claiming a property tax relief credit, attach RI-1040H to your Rhode Island income tax return.
Your property tax relief credit will decrease any income tax due or increase any income tax refund. If you are not required to file a Rhode Island income tax return, Form RI-1040H may be filed without attaching it to a Rhode Island income tax return.

WHO MAY QUALIFY

To qualify for the property tax relief credit you must meet all of the following conditions:
a) If you are 65 years of age or older on December 31, 2000 or a disabled person who has received social security disability payments during 2000, you will receive the full amount of Property Tax Relief for which you qualify. However, if you are not 65 years of age or not disabled, your claim for Property Tax Relief will be held until June 30, 2001. At that time, the Tax Administrator shall make payments to each such claimant proportionately, based on the unexpended appropriation, pursuant to R. I. G. L. Chapter 44-33.
b) You must have been a resident of Rhode Island for the entire calendar year 2000.
c) Your household income must have been $30,000 or less.
d) You must have lived in a house or rented a dwelling that was subject to property taxes.
e) You must be current on property tax due on your homestead for all prior years and be current on all installments due during 2000.

WHO MAY CLAIM CREDIT

If you meet all of the qualifications outlined above, you should complete Form RI-1040H to determine if you are entitled to a credit. Only one person of a household may claim the credit. If you and one or more qualified individuals each rent or own a house in a single dwelling, you may each file a claim. The right to file a claim does not survive a person’s death; therefore a claim filed on behalf of a deceased person cannot be allowed. If a claimant dies after having filed a timely claim, the amount thereof will be disbursed to another member of the household as determined by the Tax Administrator.

WHEN AND WHERE TO FILE

Your property tax relief claim should be filed as soon as possible after December 31, 2000. However, no claim for the year 2000 will be allowed unless such claim is filed by April 15, 2001. However, an extension for filing may be allowed at the Tax Administrator’s discretion for sickness, absence or other disability.
Mail your property tax relief claim to the Rhode Island Division of Taxation, One Capitol Hill, Providence, RI 02908-5806.

IMPORTANT DEFINITIONS

What is meant by “homestead”
“Homestead” means your Rhode Island dwelling, whether owned or rented, and so much of the land around it as is reasonably necessary for the use of the dwelling as a home, but not exceeding one acre. It may consist of a part of a multi-dwelling, a multi-purpose building or another shelter in which people live. It may be an apartment, a rented room, a mobile home, or a farm.

What is meant by a “household”
“Household” means one or more persons occupying a dwelling unit and living as a single nonprofit housekeeping unit. Household does not mean bona fide lessees, tenants or roomers and boarders on contract.

What is meant by “household income”
“Household income” means all income received both taxable and nontaxable by all persons of a household in a calendar year while members of the household.

What is meant by “rent paid for occupancy only”
The term “rent paid for occupancy only” means the gross rent paid only for the right of occupying your homestead. If you rented furnished quarters, or if utilities were furnished, such as heat, electricity, etc., then you must reduce the amount of gross rent by the reasonable rental value of such utilities as were furnished.

LIMITATION ON CREDIT

Under the provisions of Section 44-33-16, a claim for relief shall exclude all taxes or rent paid with public assistance funds. The maximum amount of credit allowable under Chapter 44-33, Property Tax Relief Act, for the calendar year 2000 is $250.00. In the event that more than one person owns the residence, the taxes will be divided by the owners’ share.
