DECISION

I. INTRODUCTION

The above-entitled matter came before the undersigned as the result of a Notice of Hearing and Appointment of Hearing Officer dated March 1, 2016 and issued to the above-captioned taxpayers (“Taxpayers”) by the Division of Taxation (“Division”) in response to a request for hearing filed with the Division. A hearing was held on May 12, 2016. The Taxpayers were a married couple and the husband (“Husband”) represented them. The Division was represented by counsel. The parties rested on the record.

II. JURISDICTION

The Division has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-1 et seq., R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-1-1 et seq., Division of Taxation Administrative Hearing Procedures Regulation AHP 97-0, and the Division of Legal Services Regulation 1 Rules of Procedure for Administrative Hearings.

III. ISSUE

Whether the Taxpayers’ claimed refund for the calendar year 2010 was timely filed pursuant to R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87.

IV. MATERIAL FACTS AND TESTIMONY

Principal Revenue Agent, testified on behalf of the Division. He testified that the Taxpayers' 2010 Rhode Island resident return was hand delivered to the Division by the wife on December 9, 2015. He testified that the return was unsigned, but was accepted by the Division because it was hand delivered in person. He testified that there was no evidence that the Taxpayers' 2010 return had been filed at any other time. See Division's Exhibits A (Taxpayers' 2010 return) and C (Taxpayers' letter to the IRS). He testified that the refund was denied as out-of-time pursuant to R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87 since the Taxpayers did not fall under either time period in the statute.

The Husband testified on behalf of the Taxpayers. He testified their 2010 Federal return was filed on September 17, 2013. See Taxpayers' Exhibit One (1). He testified that to the best of his knowledge, their Massachusetts and Rhode Island tax returns were filed at the same time as the Federal returns, but he does not have a record of those filings. He testified that he does not know if there is any discretion in the statute, but he and his wife were in a difficult period in 2010 and subsequently. He testified that 2010 was a large earning year because it included severance pay for his wife who had been laid off. He testified that the following year, he and his wife both suffered serious medical issues and they moved three (3) times between 2011 and 2014, so the mail did not always catch up with them. He testified that they always had paid their taxes on time, and they believed they had paid their taxes on time. He testified that they would like the refund as a tax credit because they owe Rhode Island for 2015, and the Federal government has allowed them to apply their 2010 refund to their Federal tax liability. He testified that he felt this denial of refund was unfair because if they had been late paying their taxes and then filed their return, they could have gotten refunds, but because they paid their taxes on time, they are out-of-time.

V. DISCUSSION

A. Legislative Intent

The Rhode Island Supreme Court has consistently held that it effectuates legislative intent by examining a statute in its entirety and giving words their plain and ordinary meaning. In re Falstaff Brewing Corp., 637 A.2d 1047 (R.I. 1994). If a statute is clear and unambiguous, “the Court must interpret the statute literally and must give the words of the statute their plain and ordinary meanings.” Oliveira v. Lombardi, 794 A.2d 453 (R.I. 2002) (citation omitted). The Supreme Court has also established that it will not interpret legislative enactments in a manner that renders them nugatory or that would produce an unreasonable result. See Defenders of Animals v. Dept. of Environmental Management, 553 A.2d 541 (R.I. 1989) (citation omitted). In cases where a statute may contain ambiguous language, the Rhode Island Supreme Court has consistently held that the legislative intent must be considered. Providence Journal Co. v. Rodgers, 711 A.2d 1131 (R.I. 1998). The statutory provisions must be examined in their entirety and the meaning most consistent with the policies and purposes of the legislature must be effectuated. Id.

B. Relevant Statute

R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87(a) states as follows:

Limitations on credit or refund. – (a) General. Claim for credit or refund of an overpayment of tax shall be filed by the taxpayer within three (3) years from the time the return was filed or two (2) years from the time the tax was paid, whichever of these periods expires the later, or if no return was filed by the taxpayer, within two (2) years from the time the tax was paid. If the claim is filed within the three (3) year period, the amount of the credit or refund shall not exceed the portion of the tax paid within the three (3) year period. If the claim is not filed within the three (3) year period, but is filed within the two (2) year period, the amount of the credit or refund shall not exceed the portion of the tax paid during the two (2) years immediately preceding the filing of the claim. Except as otherwise provided in this section, if no claim is filed, the amount of a credit or refund shall not exceed the amount which would be allowable if a claim has been filed on the date the credit or refund is allowed.

B. When Refunds are Allowed

R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87 provides different time periods within which a refund is allowed. A refund may be claimed within three (3) years of filing a return. If a claim is made within the three (3) year period, the amount of credit cannot exceed the amount of tax paid within that three (3) year period. A claim may be filed within two (2) years from the time the tax was paid. If a claim is made within the two (2) year period, the amount of refund may not exceed the portion of tax paid during the two (2) years preceding the filing of the claim.

Pursuant to R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87(i),¹ the Taxpayers' tax for 2010 was deemed paid on the date it was due, April 15, 2011. In addition, R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-51² states that Rhode Island personal income tax returns are to be filed by April 15 after the close of the taxable year. R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-52³ states that tax shall be paid on or before the date fixed for filing without regard to an extension. In addition, R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87(e)⁴ specifically precludes any other

(i) Prepaid income tax. For purposes of this section, any income tax withheld from the taxpayer during any calendar year and any amount paid as estimated income tax for a taxable year is deemed to have been paid by the taxpayer on the fifteenth day of the fourth month following the close of his or her taxable year with respect to which the amount constitutes credit or payment.

² R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-51 states in parts as follows:

Returns and liabilities. – (a) General. On or before the fifteenth day of the fourth month following the close of a taxable year, a Rhode Island personal income tax return shall be made and filed by or for:

(1) Every resident individual required to file a federal income tax return for the taxable year, or having Rhode Island income for the taxable year, determined under § 44-30-12, in excess of the sum of his federal personal exemptions.

³ R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-52 states in part as follows:

Time and place for filing returns and paying tax. – A person required to make and file a Rhode Island personal income tax return shall, without assessment, notice, or demand, pay any tax due thereon to the tax administrator on or before the date fixed for filing the return, determined without regard to any extension of time for filing the return. The tax administrator shall prescribe the place for filing any return, declaration, statement, or other document and for payment of the tax.

⁴ R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87(e), states as follows:

(e) Failure to file claim within prescribed period. No credit or refund shall be allowed or made, except as provided in subsection (f) of this section, after the expiration of the applicable period of limitation unless a claim for credit or refund is filed by the taxpayer within that period or unless the tax administrator determines under subsection (f) of this section that the taxpayer has made an overpayment. Any later credit shall be void and any later refund erroneous. No period of limitations specified in any other law shall apply to the recovery by a taxpayer of moneys paid in respect of Rhode Island personal income tax.

period of limitations specified in any other laws from being applied to recovery of personal income tax refunds.

Pursuant to the tenets of statutory construction, a statute must be examined in its entirety and words be given their plain and ordinary meaning. Infra. The State statute states that the beginning of the three (3) year period is when the return was filed and that the time period is within three (3) years from when the return was filed. This unambiguous prospective application is further clarified by the fact that the statute clearly delineates that the two (2) year claim period refers to the period immediately preceding the filing date. Indeed, when reviewing the statute in its entirety and applying the plain meaning of the language, it is clear that the legislature intended to strictly limit the time to claim a refund and amounts of refunds. The legislature could have chosen to make the three (3) year period like the two (2) year period but chose not to. Indeed, it chose instead to strictly limit the time allowed and the amount of refunds claimed.

Thus, applying the State statute results in the following timeline:

1. The Taxpayers' 2010 tax was deemed paid April 15, 2011. The Taxpayers were able to request a refund two (2) years from that date. Any claim for a refund filed in the two (2) year period would be limited to amounts paid in the preceding two (2) years.
2. The Taxpayers filed their 2010 Rhode Island return on December 9, 2015.
3. December 9, 2015 is past the two (2) year period from the date the taxes were deemed paid that is allowed for requesting a refund.
4. The statute also allows a claim for a refund to be filed within three (3) years from the date of the return being filed.
5. Thus, the Taxpayers may file a request for a refund within three (3) years of filing of the return.

6. The Taxpayers are within the three (3) year period to claim a refund.

7. The statute specifically limits the amount of a refund for those filed in the three (3) year period to the portion of tax paid “within the three (3) year period” as opposed to those requests filed within the two (2) year period which are limited to tax paid “during the two (2) years immediately preceding the filing of the claim.”

8. The Taxpayers have not paid any tax from December 9, 2015 to the present.

In addition, an agency’s acquiescence to a continued practice is entitled to great weight in determining legislative intent. R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87 was enacted in 1971 and has not been amended. See Division’s Final Decision (10/25/85) (refund request denied as untimely under statute). While the three (3) year period clearly refers to the period from the date of filing, it is a well-recognized principle that a longstanding, practical and plausible interpretation given a statute of doubtful meaning by those responsible for its implementation without any interference by the Legislature should be accepted as evidence that such a construction conforms to the legislative intent. Thus, if it was found that the statute was unclear, the Division’s long standing interpretation is entitled to deference. Trice v. City of Cranston, 297 A.2d 649 (R.I. 1972).⁵

While the Taxpayers had a complicated medical and distressing family situation during 2010 and afterwards, there are no provisions in the statute that provide for any exemptions from the time limits set by statute. Indeed, the statute already has a built-in extension for requesting refunds in that refunds are allowed to be requested either two (2) or three (3) years from the date the tax is deemed paid or the return is filed respectively. The Taxpayers further argued that the statute as applied is unfair because a taxpayer who paid his or her taxes late could be allowed to obtain a refund. Such an argument is better suited for the legislature who enacted the law. In interpreting a statute, a statute will not be interpreted in such a way that would render it meaningless or that would obtain an absurd result. Infra. However, the Taxpayers' hypothetical is not an "absurd" result but rather a hypothetical that they believe is unfair. Under the statute, similarly situated taxpayers are all treated the same. See Taxation Decision 2011-15 (8/2/11); Taxation Decision 2007-25 (10/25/07). Furthermore, an administrative proceeding is not an equitable proceeding and there is no equitable jurisdiction. To find for the Taxpayers on the basis of a fairness argument would be reversible error. Nickerson v. Reitsma, 853 A.2d 1202 (R.I. 2004).⁶

Based on the forgoing, the Taxpayers do not qualify for their claimed refund pursuant to R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87. See Tax Decision, 2007-10 (May 10, 2007).

VI. FINDINGS OF FACT

1. On or about March 1, 2016, the Division issued a Notice of Hearing and an Appointment of Hearing Officer to the Taxpayers.
2. A hearing was held on May 12, 2016 with the parties resting on the record.
3. The Taxpayers' 2010 tax payment was due by April 15, 2011 and was deemed paid that day.
4. The Taxpayers filed their 2010 Rhode Island return on December 9, 2015.
5. There are no Rhode Island statutory or regulatory provisions that provide for any exemptions for any reason from the Rhode Island statute regarding the claiming of late refunds to the filing of Rhode Island tax returns.

⁶ It should be noted that even if the Taxpayers could show that their 2010 Rhode Island return was filed on September 17, 2013, they still would have been out of time as Rhode Island does not include any extension of time (unlike the Federal government which does) for filing a late refund request.

6. Pursuant to R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87(a), the Taxpayers are not entitled to the claimed refund.

VII. CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Based on the testimony and facts presented:

1. The Division has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-1 et seq. and R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-1-1 et seq.

2. Pursuant to R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87(a), the Taxpayers are not entitled to the refund claimed for 2010.

VIII. RECOMMENDATION

Based on the above analysis, the Hearing Officer recommends as follows:

Pursuant to R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-87(a), the Taxpayers are not entitled to the refund claimed for 2010 and the Division properly denied the Taxpayers' claim for the refund.

Acting Tax Administrator

NOTICE OF APPELLATE RIGHTS

THIS DECISION CONSTITUTES A FINAL ORDER OF THE DIVISION. THIS ORDER MAY BE APPEALED TO THE SIXTH DIVISION DISTRICT COURT PURSUANT TO R.I. Gen. Laws § 44-30-90 WHICH STATES AS FOLLOWS:

Review of tax administrator's decision.

(a) General. Any taxpayer aggrieved by the decision of the tax administrator or his or her designated hearing officer as to his or her Rhode Island personal income tax may within thirty (30) days after notice of the decision is sent to the taxpayer by certified or registered mail, directed to his or her last known address, petition the sixth division of the district court pursuant to chapter 8 of title 8 setting forth the reasons why the decision is alleged to be erroneous and praying relief therefrom. Upon the filing of any complaint, the clerk of the court shall issue a citation, substantially in the form provided in § 44-5-26 to summon the tax administrator to answer the complaint, and the court shall proceed to hear the complaint and to determine the correct amount of the liability as in any other action for money, but the burden of proof shall be as specified in § 8-8-28.

(b) Judicial review sole remedy of taxpayer. The review of a decision of the tax administrator provided by this section shall be the exclusive remedy available to any taxpayer for the judicial determination of the liability of the taxpayer for Rhode Island personal income tax.

(c) Date of finality of tax administrator's decision. A decision of the tax administrator shall become final upon the expiration of the time allowed for petitioning the district court if no timely petition is filed, or upon the final expiration of the time for further judicial review of the case.

CERTIFICATION

I hereby certify that on the 24th day of June, 2016 a copy of the above Decision and Notice of Appellate Rights were sent by first class mail, postage prepaid and return receipt requested to the Taxpayers' address on file with the Division of Taxation and by hand delivery to Matthew Cate, Esquire, Department of Revenue, One Capitol Hill, Providence, Rhode Island, 02908.
